

Travel starts opening up between provinces

ITS News

The big news in Vietnam over the past few weeks remains the reopening of cities and towns following lockdown. Ho Chi Minh City and many other regions had been under 'stay at home' restrictions for over 100 days. But life is slowly returning to normal, even if that 'normal' is a little different to before.

Not everything is open of course. There's been a softening of lockdown rules, so people are able to exercise and leave their homes for essential reasons. Supermarkets and food vendors have mostly reopened, with other stores such as hairdressers and baby shops also able to ply trade. Many of these places allow limited numbers only. Restaurants are able to serve takeaway food.

A sense of relief is most definitely in the air.

Inbound tourism news

Kien Giang, Khanh Hoa, Quang Nam, Da Nang and Quang Ninh will welcome foreign tourists starting November in the first phase of Vietnam's roadmap to resume international tourism.

- Small number of population
- Chance to join turtle conservation and other nature programs supporting biodiversity in the area.
- Optional: A meditation or yoga course, to add to the serenity of your stay.

Covid update

The total number of Covid cases in Vietnam has now reached 849,198, with 20,869 deaths. At the time of writing, the country has 44,890 active cases. Thursday 14th October reported 4,147 new cases.

Cases are down when comparing to the past 7 days, with a ↓33% decrease in figures. Deaths have also decreased by ↓28%. The past week has seen an average of 3,851 daily cases, compared to 5,147 the week prior. With cases down and vaccines in progress, these are very good signs for the country.

Regarding vaccinations, just over 40% of the population have received at least one shot so far. 17% have been fully-vaccinated and 24% have had a single shot. The country is still working on securing more vaccinations, with recent donations coming from South Korea and the United States.
